Of course, the President's daughters were all exceedingly interested in "the new house," 2340 S street, which is to be the President's home after March 4, and of course they were all taken up to look it over. From all accounts they were immensely pleased with it. Mrs. Wilson is almost as busy furniture hunting now as she was house hunting during the autumn and early whiter. For she proposes to have it in complete readiness for their occupancy before the first of March and all their belongings down to their hand luggage up there walting for them on March 4 when the President moves in. The house is to be formally turned over to the President and Mrs. Wilson on Petruary 15. I understard, and, fortunately, it will require no remodelling of any importance except in the library, which will have to be enlarged to accommodate the President's very large collection of books and manuscripts.

All the Cabinet folk seem to be preparing to get back into private life, sir. Marshall is looking forward to a period of quiet. Messrs. Palmer and Baker are going back to their law offices in their name towns—Stroudsburg, Pa., which is close to Harrisburg, one doesn't see Mr. Palmer definitely out of political and otherwise. Secretary Houston says he'd like to got back to the farm—as one recalls it his farm was educational-but the bankers becken alluringly and he may yield to the temptations of big business.

Each of these undoubtedly will be preceded by a number of exclusive dinners, even as Monday night's was.

Among Monday's night's hosts were the Garrison McClintocks, the Frederick Huidekopers and the Peter Goelet Gerrys, who entertained relatively small companies, and Mrs. Thomas Heyer of Houston. Tex., which was celevated at noon to-day.
